Big Bang Ballers

Created in 2010, the association uses sport as a vehicle for citizenship education, inclusion and living together.

Through partner organisations, the association offers a variety of sporting activities tailored to people who are marginalised for physical, mental or social reasons (people with disabilities, people from exile, women and girls, overweight people, etc.).

Using leadership methods derived from popular education and expertise built up over 12 years, the association's members adapt their postures, change the rules of sports games and offer physical activities adapted to welcome everyone and get them playing together.
